THE

DECENNIAL CENSUS OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

1895.

VOLUME IV.

INTRODUCTION.

This volume contains the following sections:

Part 1.
Classified Occupations; Sex, Native and Foreign Born: By Towns and Wards of Cities.

Part 2.
All Occupations: By Towns. For the Counties of Barnstable, Berkshire, Bristol, and Dukes.

Part 3.
All Occupations: By Towns. For the Counties of Essex, Franklin, Hampden, and Hampshire.

Part 4.
All Occupations: By Towns. For the Counties of Middlesex, Nantucket, and Norfolk.

Part 5.
All Occupations: By Towns. For the Counties of Plymouth, Suffolk, and Worcester.

Each of these sections, in pamphlet form, has been given to the public as soon as completed. Recapitulations and statistics showing for the State as a whole All Occupations in detail, will be found in Volume VII of the Census series.

The tabular presentations in the present volume are accompanied with full analyses, qualifying and explaining the statistics, and these analyses should be carefully considered in interpreting the figures.

HORACE G. WADLIN,
Chief.

BUREAU OF STATISTICS OF LABOR,
STATE HOUSE, BOSTON,
November, 1900.

Classified Occupations; Sex, Native and Foreign Born: By Towns and Wards of Cities.

CLASSIFIED OCCUPATIONS: BY TOWNS.

The Enumerators engaged to take the population Census of 1895 were supplied with full instructions to guide them in the prosecution of their work. We make a few extracts from the instructions given them in relation to the recording of the occupations of the people, as follows:

"To ascertain the Occupations of the people is next in importance to enumerating them. The Occupation desired is the profession, trade, or branch of business upon which the person chiefly depends for his support; that is, it is his particular occupation that is gainful or most remunerative in its nature.

"The population, as regards Occupation, resolves itself into six classes: first, the children who are too young to be in school and who are 'at home;' second, those children or young persons (or even adults) who may be 'at school' — which act of getting an education is considered an 'occupation' for Census purposes; third, the great productive class engaged in the various occupations; fourth, those young persons and adults, not under or beyond the working age, who, for some reason, have no occupation; fifth, those adults who have retired from business, with means for their own support, after a life of activity; sixth, those who may have worked all their lives but are now unable to support themselves, and being non-productive are dependent to a more or less degree upon their children or relatives."

The following special instructions were given in regard to the manner of enumeration of housekeepers, housewives, those engaged in housework, and domestic servants:

Use the term "housekeepers" only for those persons engaged in domestic service who receive wages or salary for work performed.

Use the term "housewives" only for females who are heads of families, or wives, or women keeping house by themselves, who have no gainful occupation, and who receive no stated salary or wage for their services.

Under persons engaged in housework include daughters, sisters, or other relatives or friends who assist in the domestic work of the family without a stated salary or wage for their services, and who have no remunerative employment.

As regards domestic servants, where a family employs but one servant whose duties are of a general nature, say — General Servant. Where possible give name indicating particular service and place where service is performed, as — Cook — Family; Chambermaid — Hotel; Table Girl — Family; etc.

The classified showing of occupations, commencing on page 4, presents by counties, cities, and towns, and for the State, with specification of sex and native and foreign born, a division of the people into 22 classes, which, for Census purposes, are considered as occupations.

The division into classes is as follows:

GOVERNMENT. — Persons engaged in the service of the national, state, city, or town governments, and persons in the service of the United States army and navy.

PROFESSIONAL. — Persons connected with religion, law, medicine, literature, art, music, amusements, education, and science.

DOMESTIC SERVICE. — Persons engaged in hotel, boarding and lodging service, housewives, persons engaged in housework (without remuneration), housekeepers, and domestic servants.

PERSONAL SERVICE. — Persons (not otherwise classified) who render personal service, as barbers, bootblacks, carpet cleaners, clerks and copyists (for professional people, etc.), companions, janitors, matrons, nurses, stewards, typists, ushers, valets, washerwomen, watchers, watchmen, etc.

TRADE. — Merchants and dealers, salesmen and saleswomen, accountants, bookkeepers, clerks, agents, bankers, brokers, messengers, porters, etc.

TRANSPORTATION. — Carriers on roads, steam railroads, and seas and rivers.

AGRICULTURE. — Farmers, gardeners, market gardeners, etc., and persons engaged in the care of animals (on farms), etc. Farm laborers who were included in the class called "Agriculture" in the Census of 1885, in this Census have been taken therefrom and have been presented in the class entitled "Laborers."

THE FISHERIES. — Persons engaged in the fisheries.

MANUFACTURES. — Persons engaged in the various manufacturing and mechanical industries. All unskilled laborers connected with the various manufacturing and mechanical industries were enumerated therewith in the Census of 1885, but in the Census of 1895 have been taken therefrom and have been presented with the class entitled "Laborers."

MINING. — Persons engaged in mining, quarrying, etc. All unskilled laborers who were classified under the head of "Mining" in 1885 have been taken therefrom and have been included under the head of "Laborers."

LABORERS. — General day laborers, city and town laborers, etc. As stated above, farm laborers, or laborers connected with manufacturing and mechanical industries, and all mine and quarry laborers who were classified under the previous mentioned heads in the Census of 1885 have been taken therefrom and in the Census of 1895 are classed under the heading now under consideration. In the presentation "OCCUPATIONS BY NAME. FOR THE STATE" there will be shown in detail, however, the number of laborers in each of the different branches of industry. See Analysis for further explanation of the changes in the classification of laborers.

APPRENTICES. — Persons learning trades or branches of business.

CHILDREN AT WORK. — Children of ages 10 to 14, both inclusive, who both work and go to school or who work only. The upper age limit has been raised one year in tabulation as compared with the Census of 1885. See Analysis.

SCHOLARS. — Persons attending public and private schools.

STUDENTS. — Persons at college, or studying special branches, as law, dentistry, medicine, etc.

RETIRED. — Persons not engaged in active business pursuits, but who are possessed of a competency, inherited or acquired. It will be found that this class shows a material increase over the figures reported for 1885. This is due partially, of course, to the increase in population; but a large part of the increase is attributable to the fact that a great many persons who in 1885 were classed under the head of "Not Productive," as the result of more careful enumeration and specification, have in this Census been more properly classified under the heading under consideration.

NOT GAINFUL, ETC. — Persons having occupations which in their nature are not gainful, or which cannot be classified.

NOT PRODUCTIVE. — In the Census of 1885, under this heading were included afflicted persons, homeless minors, paupers, prisoners, and convicts, who by reason of their disabilities, etc., had no productive occupations. In the Census of 1895, as many of these classes as had a productive occupation previous to becoming socially or physically defective, have been classified according to that occupation, and this fact contributes to reduce the number reported under this heading. This class has also lost from the fact that many classified under it in 1885, by more careful enumeration and specification in 1895, have been placed either under the heading "Retired" or "Dependents."

UNEMPLOYED TWELVE MONTHS. — Persons not employed at all during the Census year at their accustomed occupations.

DEPENDENTS. — Persons (mostly in private families) more or less dependent upon relatives or friends for their support. The number in this class in 1895 has been largely increased as compared with 1885, from the fact, as explained above, that many classified under the heading "Not Productive" in 1885, have, as the result of more careful enumeration and specification, been included under the heading now under consideration. The figures for 1895 show a much larger increase than would occur from the natural increase in population.

AT HOME. — This class was intended to include only those children too young to go to school, but many Enumerators misunderstood this instruction and included in this class all persons, of whatever age, found at home without any specified occupation. Many of these should undoubtedly have been included in other classes but as they are called simply "At Home" it is manifestly impossible to redistribute them.

NOT STATED. — Young persons or adults, of working age, who, for some reason, have no occupation, or for whom no occupation was returned. This class was denominated "Not Given" in the Census of 1885, but the change indicated has been made in the present Census.

The reader is referred to succeeding presentations in this volume for explanation of the method of subdivision of the 22 classes described above into 123 sections, or minor classes, and also for the explanation of the further subdivisions of these minor classes into specific details amounting in number to about 4,000. The Census of 1885 contained 17,253 such details, but a careful examination and combination of the minor details have resulted in the consolidation stated above.

Classified Occupations; Sex, Native and Foreign Born: By Towns and Wards of Cities, ... 1–151

The first presentation relating to occupations gives the classified occupations, by sex and by native and foreign born, for towns and for the wards of cities, with a recapitulation by counties and for the State. This presentation is contained on pages 1 to 151. The reader should carefully note what is said in the statements contained on pages 2 and 3, ante, which explain fully the method of collecting the information and the method of classification employed.

The classes of occupations number 22, and within these every person enumerated in the Census is included; that is to say, these so-called occupation classes include every person in the Commonwealth. They comprise, therefore, gainful occupations, and also classes which in the ordinary usage of the word are not occupations, but which for census purposes are so considered. For example, there is a class Retired, a class Not Gainful, etc., a class Not Productive; this discrimination being necessary in order to account for every person enumerated in the Census. As previously stated, the information on pages 2 and 3 fully sets forth the designations of the different classes, and explains clearly just who are included under each class. This explanation, therefore, need not be repeated here. A subsequent presentation will show clearly what part of the entire population is included in strictly gainful occupations.

The recapitulations of the first presentation will be found on pages 144 to 151, the first recapitulation bringing together the figures by counties upon pages 144 to 149. From the recapitulation for the State on pages 150 and 151, the figures being accompanied by percentages, it will be seen that, the population being 2,500,183, persons engaged in government service (National, State, city or town) number 20,095, the other classes being as follows: Professional, 44,015; domestic service, 651,859; personal service, 45,486; trade, 154,017; transportation, 70,048; agriculture, 37,556; the fisheries, 8,831; manufactures, 492,497; mining, 2,367; laborers, 98,965; apprentices, 5,887; children at work, 5,535; scholars, 421,738; students, 17,161; retired, 45,780; not gainful, etc., 767; not productive, 25; unemployed twelve months, 8,339; dependents, 23,859; at home, 296,606; and not stated, 48,750. The class which forms the largest proportion of the total population includes persons engaged in domestic service, who number about 26 (26.07 per cent) in every 100 of the total population; but this, as explained in the note, page 2, ante, includes all housewives, persons doing housework but not for hire, housekeepers, as well as domestic servants. Next ranks the class Manufactures, which includes about 20 persons (19.70 per cent) in every 100. These two classes include by far the larger part of all the persons engaged in gainful occupations, although, as just stated, persons in domestic service include housewives and persons engaged in housework without remuneration, the exact number of such persons, as distinguished from persons gainfully employed in domestic service being hereinafter shown in a presentation of "Occupations by Name. For the State." In government service we find not quite one person in every 100 of the population (0.80 per cent); in professional service, nearly two persons in every 100 (1.76 per cent); in personal service, nearly two persons in every 100 (1.82 per cent); in trade, about six persons in every 100

(6.16 per cent); in agriculture, between one and two persons in every 100 (1.50 per cent); in the fisheries, only about one person in every 300 (0.35 per cent). The laborers number nearly four in every 100 (3.96 per cent). Under this term are included those not having skilled employment, no matter in what division of industry such persons may have been employed at the time of the Census. This classification of laborers involves a change from that followed in 1885. At that time the unskilled laborers were for the most part distributed through the different industry classes; but as such persons are not definitely fixed in any particular industry, but are fixed only as they belong to an unskilled class, who may be found to-day in one branch of industry and at some other time in another branch, it has been thought proper in classifying the returns of the present Census to confine them under a single classified head, namely, Laborers. A subsequent presentation "Occupations by Name. For the State" will, however, show the different branches of industry in which such laborers happened to be employed at the time of taking the Census.

On the basis of sex, males will be found to largely preponderate in the following classes: Government, trade, transportation, agriculture, the fisheries, manufactures, mining, laborers, and apprentices. The persons classified as retired, not gainful, etc., and unemployed twelve months, are also largely males. On the other hand, females largely preponderate in domestic service, while the number of males and females is approximately the same in the professional class, which includes teachers.

Of the native born in the State, nearly one in every 100 (0.88 per cent) is occupied in government service; about two in every 100 (2.15 per cent) in professional service; about 21 in every 100 (21.26 per cent) in domestic service; about three in every 200 (1.51 per cent) in personal service; about seven in every 100 (6.91 per cent) in trade; nearly three in every 100 (2.62 per cent) in transportation; nearly two in every 100 (1.71 per cent) in agriculture; about one in every 600 (0.18 per cent) in the fisheries; nearly 16 in every 100 (15.98 per cent) in manufactures; while about two in every 100 (2.28 per cent) are laborers. Of the foreign born population, slightly more than one in every 200 (0.63 per cent) are in government service; nearly one in every 100 (0.87 per cent) in professional service; nearly 37 in every 100 (36.99 per cent) in domestic service; about five in every 200 (2.53 per cent) in personal service; about nine in every 200 (4.47 per cent) in trade; about three in every 100 (3.22 per cent) in transportation; about one in every 100 (1.03 per cent) in agriculture; not quite one in every 100 (0.75 per cent) in the fisheries; about 28 in every 100 (28.13 per cent) in manufactures; while the laborers include nearly eight in every 100 (7.76 per cent).

The recapitulation by counties brings out the following leading facts: In Barnstable County, the population being 27,654, the persons engaged in domestic service number 9,387; in manufactures, 1,862; in the fisheries, 1,393; in transportation, 1,185; in trade, 1,113; and in agriculture, 976, these being the most numerous classes engaged in gainful occupations. We may point out the most numerous classes in the other counties as follows: In Berkshire County, population 86,292; persons engaged in domestic service, 21,908; manufactures, 16,229; trade, 3,276; agriculture, 3,072; transportation, 1,762; professional, 1,339; and personal service, 1,001. In Bristol County, population 219,019; persons engaged in manufactures, 57,759; domestic service, 50,474; trade, 9,555; transportation, 4,908; agriculture, 3,078; personal service, 2,997. The professional class in this county numbers 2,617, and persons in government service, 1,369. Dukes County, population 4,238; persons engaged in domestic service, 1,440; manufactures, 306, the fisheries, 194; agriculture, 188; trade, 177; transportation, 152. In Essex County, population 330,393; persons engaged in domestic service, 85,437; manufactures, 79,963; trade, 17,207; transportation, 7,884; the fisheries, 6,136; professional, 4,760; personal service, 4,716; agriculture, 3,394; government service, 2,039. Franklin County, population 40,145; persons engaged in domestic service, 11,215; manufactures, 5,360; agriculture, 2,950; trade, 1,202. In Hampden County, population 152,938; persons engaged in domestic service, 37,765; manufactures, 34,156; trade, 8,079; transportation, 3,762; agriculture, 2,680; professional, 2,382; personal service, 2,367. In Hampshire County, population 54,710; persons engaged in domestic service, 13,365; manufactures, 9,587; agriculture, 2,851; trade, 1,757. In Middlesex County, population 499,217; persons engaged in domestic service, 131,072; manufactures, 95,626; trade, 34,039; transportation, 13,947; professional, 9,619; personal service, 9,067; agriculture, 5,839; government service, 4,022. In Nantucket County, population 3,016; persons engaged in domestic service, 1,113; manufactures, 204; trade, 165. In Norfolk County, population 134,819; persons engaged in domestic service, 38,339; manufactures, 23,142; trade, 7,524; transportation, 3,373; professional, 2,838; agriculture, 2,310; personal service, 2,069. In Plymouth County, population 101,498; persons engaged in domestic service, 28,963; manufactures, 21,325; trade, 4,554; transportation, 2,247; agriculture, 2,233; professional, 1,577. In Suffolk County, population 539,799; persons engaged in domestic service, 145,081; manufactures, 78,677; trade, 52,814; transportation, 22,284; personal service, 16,435; professional, 12,032; government service, 7,304. In Worcester County, population 306,445; persons engaged in domestic service, 76,300; manufactures, 68,301; trade, 12,555; agriculture, 7,001; transportation, 6,705; professional, 4,634; personal service, 4,239; government service, 1,819.

To a certain extent differences in classification prevent the direct comparison of the figures shown in this presentation with corresponding figures given in the report of the Census of 1885. The principal change in classification, as has been stated, relates to the unskilled laborers, who in 1885 were in most cases distributed through the different industries in which they were found at the time of the enumeration. As these persons are not confined to any particular occupation, being unskilled, it has been thought proper, as previously stated, to now bring them into a class by themselves. This, of course, operates to reduce somewhat the number of persons employed in certain branches, especially in manufactures, agriculture, trade, and transportation, wherein comparatively large numbers of laborers are found. Upon the whole, however, the two classes, Agriculture and Manufactures, are the only ones that are affected sufficiently by the change in classification to disturb materially the relations of the figures in the aggregate, when compared with the figures for 1885.

Notwithstanding this classification a subsequent tabulation hereinafter presented for the State as a whole will show how many of the unskilled laborers included under the term laborers in the preceding table were engaged in each branch of industry. As the number of laborers, relatively to the entire number engaged, is larger in agriculture and manufactures than in other branches, their exclusion therefrom in 1895, but not in 1885, results in a very large apparent decline for the decade in the aggregate number of persons engaged in agriculture in 1895, and reduces to a considerable extent the apparent increase in the number of persons engaged in manufactures. But in the presentation in detail of occupations by towns, beginning on page 159, post, there will be found for each city and town, in the details under the head of laborers, figures showing the number of laborers who at the date of the Census happened to be employed in agriculture or manufactures, and these may in each case be combined with the figures showing the number engaged in the city or town in agriculture or manufactures as special branches of industry, as was done in classifying the returns in 1885.

The class Children at Work in 1895 includes such children between the ages of 10 and 14, both inclusive, while in 1885 those between 10 and 13 years both inclusive were taken. The upper age limit fixed by the statutory provisions existing in 1895 relative to the employment of children was 14, but as the Census information as to ages takes the fact from nearest birthday, those between 13 years and six months old and 14 years and six months old are termed 14, and in order to include all under 14 it was necessary in tabulating to take all reported as of age 14, thereby including an indeterminate number who were actually between 14 and 14 years and six months. This operates to increase the number reported as at work by the inclusion of one year upon the upper border of the period, as compared with the method followed in 1885.

With reference to the persons in the classes Retired, Not Productive, and Dependents, a more careful enumeration and greater attention to instructions on the part of the enumerators generally, has operated to nearly eliminate the class termed Not Productive, most persons whose condition caused them to be thus classed in 1885 being now included under the headings Retired or Dependents. In making comparisons between 1885 and 1895, therefore, neither of these classes can be considered separately without misconception.

Subsequent presentations relating to occupations will permit various interesting comparisons between the conditions obtaining in 1885 and those disclosed in 1895. At present, however, we confine ourselves to a simple comparison for the State, by classes, using the figures for 1895 shown in the recapitulation on page 151, and reproducing the figures for 1885 from the report of the Census taken in that year, after subjecting such figures to revision so as to bring them to the basis of the classification employed in the present Census. That is to say, persons who were unskilled laborers and who may have been classed under some specific industry head in 1885, have been taken therefrom and put into the class Laborers, exactly as has been done in classifying the returns for 1895; and persons in the classes Retired, Not Productive, or Dependents, have been brought together for both years.

The comparative figures are given in the following table, presented by percentages which show what part of the entire population is represented by each class respectively:

Occupations.	1885	1895	Percentages
			1885	1895
THE STATE.	1,942,141	2,500,183	100.00	100.00

Not stated,	39,915	48,750	2.06	1.95

With respect to the figures in the foregoing table, it is seen that the persons in government service increased from 10,877 to 20,095: but while such persons constituted 0.56 per cent of the population in 1885, they composed 0.80 per cent of the population in 1895, only a slight increase in proportion. The professional class increased from 30,507 to 44,015, representing 1.57 per cent of the population in 1885 and 1.76 per cent in 1895. Under the head of Domestic Service, which, it should be borne in mind, includes all persons properly so designated, whether working for hire or not, that is, domestic servants, housekeepers, and housewives, there were 534,140 persons returned in 1885 and 651,859 in 1895. Although this is a considerable gain numerically, nevertheless when considered with reference to the population as a whole the class declines from 27.50 per cent in 1885 to 26.07 per cent in 1895. Under the head of Personal Service there were 24,070 persons classified in 1885 and 45,486 in 1895, a considerable gain numerically; but these persons formed 1.24 per cent of the population in 1885 and 1.82 per cent in 1895. In Trade there were 104,482 persons in 1885 and 154,017 in 1895, comprising, respectively, 5.38 per cent and 6.16 per cent of the population. In Transportation the numbers increased from 45,347 in 1885 to 70,048 in 1895; but these persons comprised 2.33 per cent of the population in 1885 and 2.80 per cent in 1895. In Agriculture the number engaged declined from 40,961 to 37,556, farm laborers, it will be remembered, having been eliminated in each case. These numbers comprised, respectively, 2.11 per cent and 1.50 per cent of the population. In The Fisheries the numbers rose from 7,980 in 1885 to 8,831 in 1895. When considered as a percentage of the entire population, however, a decline is shown of 0.41 to 0.35 per cent. In Manufactures the numbers rose from 378,421 in 1885 to 492,497 in 1895, laborers employed not being included in either case; but the percentages which such persons form of the population at each period, respectively, have not greatly changed, being for 1885, 19.48, and for 1895, 19.70. Under the head of Mining, which in Massachusetts is largely composed of persons engaged in quarries, there were 1,088 persons classified in 1885 and 2,367 in 1895, comprising, respectively, 0.06 per cent and 0.10 per cent of the population. Laborers, who include unskilled persons, no matter how engaged, rose from 92,404 in 1885 to 98,965 in 1895; but the percentages which these numbers, respectively, form of the population declined from 4.76 to 3.96. Apprentices, who comprise persons learning trades or branches of trades, aggregated 5,678 in 1885 and 5,887 in 1895, being, respectively, 0.29 per cent and 0.24 per cent of the population.

Children at Work, which as previously explained, include children at work between the ages of 10 and 13, both inclusive, in 1885, and between the ages of 10 and 14, both inclusive, in 1895, comprised 3,040 in 1885 and 5,535 in 1895, or 0.16 per cent and 0.22 per cent of the population at each date, the apparent increase in proportion being largely if not wholly due to the raising of the age limit in classifying under this head. Scholars, which includes the pupils attending the public and private schools, rose from 331,584 in 1885 to 421,738 in 1895; but the percentages of the population show a slight decline, namely, from 17.07 to 16.87. This decline is partly accounted for, no doubt, by the inclusion under the head of Children at Work, of a certain number of age 14 who were at school but who were also at work.

Persons classed as Students, who were at college or studying special branches, show a considerable numerical increase, the numbers rising from 7,142 in 1885 to 17,161 in 1895, such persons constituting, respectively, 0.37 per cent and 0.69 per cent of the population. Persons grouped under the head of Retired, Not Productive, and Dependents numbered 56,260 in 1885 and 69,664 in 1895. The percentage which such persons form of the total population slightly declined, however; namely, from 2.90 in 1885 to 2.79 in 1895. Persons classed as Not Gainful, etc., being persons having occupations which in their nature are not gainful or cannot be classified, numbered 210 in 1885 and 767 in 1895, forming in each case but an insignificant percentage of the population.

Persons unemployed during the entire twelve months of the Census year numbered 822 in 1885 and 8,339 in 1895, such persons forming 0.04 per cent of the population in 1885 and 0.33 per cent in 1895. The condition indicated by these figures and the large numerical gain shown in 1895 as compared with 1885 is not to be considered as indicating a permanent condition, but as showing the influence of the extreme industrial depression in the last named year as compared with the former, which was a year of normal industrial activity. A consideration of the subject of unemployment in another volume will bring out fully the conditions surrounding the industrial population, with respect to employment in the Census year. The number of persons in the class At Home, which was intended to include only those children too young to go to school or to be otherwise occupied, rose from 227,213 in 1885 to 296,606 in 1895, the percentage which these persons constitute of the population in each year being practically the same, namely, 11.70 and 11.86; but as stated on page 3, ante, many enumerators misunderstood this instruction and included in this class all persons, of whatever age, found at home without any specified occupation. Many of these should undoubtedly have been included in other classes, but as they are called simply "at home" it is manifestly impossible to redistribute them. Conditions as to occupations were not stated for 39,915 persons in 1885 and 48,750 in 1895, these numbers forming, respectively, 2.06 per cent and 1.95 per cent of the population. These include young persons or adults of working age who for some reason have no occupation or for whom no occupation was returned.

As explained in the note on page 3, ante, subsequent presentations relating to occupations will present a division of the 22 classes herein shown into 123 sections or minor classes, and will finally, for the State, subdivide these minor classes into specific details amounting in number to about 4,000.

After the tables were in plate the following errors were corrected by foot-notes on pages 38, 80, 97, and 118:

In Lawrence, page 38, there were 155 foreign born females included in the column headed "Professional," who should have been placed under "Domestic Service."

In Framingham, page 80, there were 61 foreign born females included under "Professional," who should have been placed under "Domestic Service."

In Waltham, page 97, the column headed "Students" included 47 native born and five foreign born males who should have been placed in the column headed "Scholars."

In Rochester, page 118, there were nine native born females included in the column headed "Government," who should have been placed in the column headed "Professional."

In Wareham, also page 118, there were 40 foreign born females included in the column headed "Professional," who should have been placed in the column "Domestic Service."

All Occupations: By Towns.

For the Counties of Barnstable, Berkshire, Bristol, and Dukes.

ALL OCCUPATIONS: BY TOWNS.

In the presentation which precedes this, entitled "CLASSIFIED OCCUPATIONS: BY TOWNS," the respective numbers of males and females residing in each city or town on May 1, 1895, have been classified under one or the other of 22 different headings, which headings are used to indicate what are usually called classes of occupations. These classes include, as a rule, large bodies of people, the classification being so general in its nature. For instance, all persons employed in trade are included under that general title, whether they are merchants, dealers, clerks, bookkeepers, salesmen, bankers, brokers, messengers, porters, or engaged in any other branch of occupation connected with the buying and selling of goods. So, likewise, under the class heading Manufactures are included all persons engaged in every branch of manufacturing or mechanical industry.

For general purposes such a classification answers all requirements; but information in more complete detail is desired as a basis of economic investigations, particularly as regards the questions of wages, employment or unemployment, length of residence in the country, the percentages of native born, foreign naturalized, or alien labor, and other important economic and social questions. This more specific designation of occupations is also of value in showing the respective numbers of persons engaged in particular industries in certain cities and towns. For instance, we speak of the cotton mill operatives of Fall River, the boot and shoe makers of Lynn, Haverhill, and Brockton, the paper makers of Holyoke, the musical instrument makers of Boston, etc. It is desirable, for various reasons, that the presentations for the different cities and towns should be, as far as possible, upon a uniform basis. The changing status of the smaller towns, the remarkable development of the cities, the relative social changes in each, and their reciprocal influence, as shown by the statistics covering the occupations of the people cannot be determined unless as full prominence has been given to the facts for the smallest town as for the largest city. Of course, in such small towns the figures in the various columns opposite the classification of occupations are often necessarily small, but they are of importance in the comparative study of the different towns, and, no matter how small, they are of as much interest and value to the town considered as are the larger figures appearing in the presentations for the large cities.

In the work of tabulation in the census office, each of the classes of occupations is subdivided into sections. The preceding presentation, "Classified Occupations: By Towns," shows, for instance, the number of persons employed by the government; the presentation "All Occupations: By Towns" shows whether these persons are employed by the national government, the state government, the city or town government, or are connected with the army or navy. So also, while the preceding presentation gives for each city and town, by sex, the number of persons employed in manufacturing and mechanical industries, the presentation "All Occupations: By Towns" states the number engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes; in the building trades; cotton goods; paper; in printing, publishing, and bookbinding; woollen goods; worsted goods; and as many other sections as may have been included under the general heading Manufactures.

We have explained the census classification covering "Classes" and "Sections;" we have still another subdivision to consider, which is called "Detail," this term being applied to the different branches of occupations comprehended by the various sections included under each of the general classes. A presentation in complete detail as regards occupations for the State will be found in Volume VII, the last of the Census series.

We subjoin a statement showing the 22 general classes, specifying under each the names of the 123 sections included therein. In connection with the title of each section, we specify also the principal details or branches of occupation included in that section, and also give the whole number of details or branches of occupations thus included.

GOVERNMENT.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT. — This section or subdivision includes employés in the custom house service, lighthouse and light boat service, postal service, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 26.

STATE GOVERNMENT. — This section includes employés in county service, state asylum and hospital service, state department service, state penal and reformatory service, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 12.

CITY AND TOWN GOVERNMENT. — This section includes clerks, janitors, teamsters, constables, and employés in fire and police department service, hospital service, street department service, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 28.

ARMY. — This section includes officers, men, and employés of the army, the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 3.

NAVY. — This section includes officers, men, and employés of the navy, the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 3.

PROFESSIONAL.

RELIGION. — This section includes clergymen, members of religious societies, priests, sextons, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 24.

LAW. — This section includes lawyers, justices, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 11.

MEDICINE. — This section includes dentists, physicians, physicians and surgeons, veterinary surgeons, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 15.

LITERATURE. — This section includes authors, editors, journalists, librarians and assistants, reporters, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 11.

ART. — This section includes artists, designers, engravers, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 14.

MUSIC. — This section includes musicians, music teachers, singers, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 12.

AMUSEMENTS. — This section includes actors, baseball players and managers, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 8.

EDUCATION. — This section includes governesses, teachers, professors, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 37.

SCIENCE. — This section includes architects, chemists, draughtsmen, engineers (civil, mechanical, and marine), inventors, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 11.

DOMESTIC SERVICE.

BOARDING AND LODGING. — This section includes employés in boarding and lodging houses, hotels, restaurants, and saloons, and boarding and lodging house keepers, hotel, restaurant, and saloon keepers, etc., the total number of branches of occupations in this section being 30.

In the preceding presentation, "Classified Occupations: By Towns," the number in each class, with specification of sex, is given, but no further information is supplied. In the presentation "All Occupations: By Towns," the information supplied is much more complete. We have first the classification by general classes and by section heads, under separate classifications by sex, for each city and town. Besides the number of persons in each class and section, with sex specification, we have in addition four classifications by age periods, four by length of residence in the United States, and also a column indicating the number of illiterate persons employed in the specified section. For instance, if we turn to the presentation for the city of Fall River, on page 278, post, under the general class heading Manufactures we find the section heading Cotton Goods. Taking the line for males first we learn that the whole number of males employed in cotton mills in the city of Fall River on May 1, 1895, was 11,176. Of these, 2,907 were 15 but under 20 years of age; 8,064, 20 but under 60 years of age; and 205, 60 years and over. The number of illiterates was 1,559. As regards length of residence in the United States, 300 had lived in the United States one year or less; 1,909 over one year but under six years; 7,759, six years but under 30 years; and 1,208, 30 years and over. Taking the line for females, on page 282 post, we find that the number of that sex employed in cotton mills in Fall River on May 1, 1895, was 11,409. Their ages, classified by age periods, were as follows: 3,668, 15 but under 20 years; 7,698, 20 but under 60 years; and 43, 60 years and over. The number of illiterate females employed in cotton mills was 1,502. As to length of residence in the United States, 390 had lived in the United States one year or less; 1,948, over one year but under six years; 8,276, six years but under 30 years; and 795, 30 years and over.

These illustrations could be multiplied indefinitely, but they would not vary materially from the one just given. In a general way it may be stated that the presentation of "All Occupations: By Towns" shows for each city and town in the Commonwealth the number of males and females engaged in each of the 22 general classes of occupations. It shows also the number of males and females engaged in each of the sections or subdivisions under each of the general classes, with further specification by age periods, length of residence, and number of illiterate persons in each of such classes or sections. Particular attention is called to the State recapitulation of this presentation which includes only towns and cities. In the State aggregation, not only are the facts hereinbefore mentioned included, but in addition are given under each class and section, correlated with the details of age periods, length of residence, and illiteracy, the place of birth and the descent of native born persons having foreign parentage, the place of birth of the father being considered as determining the nationality. This State recapitulation will be found in Volume VII, as will also a presentation for the State, showing for each of the 3,947 specific branches of occupations in detail, the number of each sex, with further specification of those native born, of native descent; native born, of foreign descent; foreign born; foreign born, naturalized; and foreign born, alien. From the fact that these presentations, to be found in another volume, are in reality State recapitulations of the tables presented in this volume, it has been deemed advisable to call particular attention to them, and to specify in which of the Census volumes they could be found.

Tabular Analysis.

All Occupations: By Towns. For the Counties of Barnstable, Berkshire, Bristol, and Dukes, ... 159-328

In connection with this analysis, the note on pages 161 to 167 should be carefully read, as it throws light upon the method of classification employed, and brings out the important features of the tabulation.

The presentation by towns, contained in this Part, is of value in any study of local conditions, particularly as regards the questions of wages, employment or unemployment, length of residence in the country, percentages of native and foreign born, foreign naturalized, and alien labor, and other important economic and social questions. It is not of mere temporary value, as although it applies to a particular year, it nevertheless affords a basis for comparisons with previous census tabulations and those which are to be made hereafter, and is also applicable to the current investigations which are constantly being made with respect to economic conditions. In fact, no study of social conditions in the towns can be thorough or complete which does not include or touch upon in one way or another the occupations of the people.

No extended analysis of the tables is required, as, in connection with the note, the information contained in them is perfectly plain. We may present, however, a few comparative statements which cover in a general way the more important facts.

First, we introduce the following table which classifies the towns in the four counties at present under consideration, namely, Barnstable, Berkshire, Bristol, and Dukes, according to their industrial prominence with respect to the three leading industries, namely, agriculture, manufactures, or the fisheries, or, if a town is not of prominence industrially, classifying it as a place of residence.

In classifying towns under the various heads shown in this table, the following plan has been adopted: If the persons employed in the three principal productive industries, namely, agriculture, manufactures, and the fisheries, comprised more than 50 per cent of the total number of persons employed in all gainful occupations, the town has been classed as an industrial town. For example, referring to the table, in Brewster in Barnstable County more than 50 per cent of the persons remuneratively employed were engaged in the three industries named, bringing that town into the industrial class; of the three industries, persons engaged in agriculture predominated over the number engaged in manufactures and the fisheries combined. It is therefore called an agricultural town, designated by the initial letter A in the table. When two or more industry designations, represented in the table by appropriate initial letters, are combined, with respect to any town, it indicates that although such town is, as explained, classed as industrial, the two or more industries are of substantially equal prominence. This is the case in Falmouth, in which the number employed in agriculture and in manufactures practically balance each other.

When the number employed in the different towns in the three industries, agriculture, manufactures, and the fisheries, was less than 50 per cent of the whole number engaged in all gainful pursuits, the town has been considered residential rather than industrial, that fact being indicated by the letter R in the table. The fact that one or more of these three industries had some prominence in such towns is indicated, however, by the use of the proper initial letters, after the letter R.

Thus, referring again to the table, the town of Barnstable in Barnstable County is classed as a residential town, the number of persons employed therein in the three industries, agriculture, manufactures, and the fisheries, being less than 50 per cent of the whole number gainfully employed. But although residential, a sufficient number were employed in agriculture and manufactures to be noted by the use of the designations A and M.

In Chatham, also classed as a residential town, agriculture and manufactures are unimportant, as indicated by the number employed, and are therefore not denoted by the initial letters; but the number of persons engaged in the fisheries warrants the use of the letter F, indicating that although a residential town, a considerable number of persons are employed in the fisheries.

The table shows the number of persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations in 1885 and in 1895 in the towns included in the counties under consideration, with the increase or decrease in 1895 as compared with 1885 in numbers and percentages and also the increase or decrease in population in numbers and percentages.

In Barnstable County, as shown by the first line of the table, 10,931 persons of both sexes were engaged in gainful and productive occupations in 1885, and only 9,973 in 1895, a decline of 958, or 8.76 per cent. During the same period the population declined 2,191, or 7.34 per cent.

The conditions in each town of the county are shown by a similar comparison. For example, in the town of Barnstable, notwithstanding the decline in the county, the population increased 0.12 per cent and the persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations increased 0.90 per cent. In the town of Bourne, also, the percentages of increase were, population 15.92; persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, 15.85. In Mashpee the conditions were the same, the increase in population being 6.11 per cent, and persons in gainful and productive occupations 11.61 per cent; also in Provincetown, the percentages of increase being, respectively, 1.67 and 2.37

These are the only towns in the county which show gains both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations.

In Falmouth the population increased 5.36 per cent but the persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations declined one per cent. In Orleans the population increased 1.87 per cent, but the persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations declined 11.46 per cent. All the other towns in the county show a decline both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, the loss in one respect being greater or less than in the other, as shown by the figures; no uniformity being apparent either in the towns as compared with one another, or in population as compared with persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations.

In Barnstable, Mashpee, and Provincetown the percentage of gain in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations was somewhat greater than the percentage of gain in population; in Bourne, on the other hand, it was less. In the following towns the percentage of loss in population was greater than the percentage of loss in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations: Brewster, Chatham, Dennis, Truro, and Yarmouth; but in Eastham, Harwich, Sandwich, and Wellfleet the contrary statement is true.

In Berkshire County the number engaged in gainful and productive occupations in 1885 was 30,126, and in 1895, 35,898, a gain of 19.16 per cent; the population gaining 16.88 per cent. The towns of Clarksburg, Dalton, Great Barrington, Lenox, and Williamstown and the cities of North Adams and Pittsfield, are the places which contribute to this gain, all the other towns in the county showing a loss in one or the other respect, and generally in both.

The percentage of gain in population was greater than the percentage of gain in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations in Clarksburg and Great Barrington, and the reverse statement is true in regard to Dalton, Lenox, North Adams, Pittsfield, and Williamstown. In the following towns the percentage of loss in population was greater than the percentage of loss in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations: Alford, Cheshire, Hancock, Lanesborough, Monterey, New Marlborough, Otis, Richmond, Sandisfield, Savoy, Sheffield, Tyringham, and Washington. In the following the contrary statement is true: Adams, Becket, Florida, Lee, Mount Washington, New Ashford, Peru, Stockbridge, West Stockbridge, and Windsor.

In Bristol County the number engaged in gainful and productive occupations in 1885 was 68,706, and in 1895, 98,589, a gain of 43.49 per cent, while the population gained but 38.18 per cent. The towns and cities in the county show a gain both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, except the towns of Attleborough, Berkley, Dartmouth, Dighton, Freetown, Norton, Raynham, Somerset, and Westport. The loss in Attleborough, however, is due to a division of the town by the incorporation of North Attleborough since the Census of 1885.

Among the towns we have mentioned as showing a loss in one or the other respect, the towns of Berkley and Dighton show a gain in population, the loss being in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations. On the other hand, Norton, Raynham, and Westport, although showing a loss in population, show a gain in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations.

In the following cities and towns the percentage of gain in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations was greater than the percentage of gain in population: Acushnet, Easton, Fall River, Mansfield, New Bedford, Rehoboth, Seekonk, Swansea, and Taunton. On the other hand, in Fairhaven the percentage of gain in population was greater than the percentage of gain in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations.

In Dukes County the number of persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations was 1,583 in 1885 and 1,665 in 1895, a gain of 5.18 per cent. The population, however, gained but 2.49 per cent. The only towns showing a gain in both respects were Cottage City and Gosnold. The town of Edgartown, while it lost in population, gained very slightly in the percentage of persons employed in gainful and productive occupations. The percentage of gain in population in Cottage City was greater than the percentage of gain in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations; but the reverse was the case in Gosnold. The towns of Chilmark and Tisbury show a greater percentage of loss in population than in the percentage of persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, but the reverse was the case in Gay Head.

Of the towns classed as agricultural in Barnstable County, three in number, Brewster and Eastham show a loss both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, while Mashpee shows a gain in each respect. Provincetown and Truro are classed as principally devoted to the fisheries. The first of these shows a gain both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, while the latter shows a loss in both respects.

In Berkshire County the towns of Alford, Becket, Egremont, Florida, Hancock, Lanesborough, Monterey, Mount Washington, New Ashford, New Marlborough, Otis, Peru, Richmond, Sandisfield, Savoy, Sheffield, Tyringham, Washington, and Windsor are classed as principally devoted to agriculture, and of these all except Egremont show a loss both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations. Egremont shows a slight gain in population, but a loss in the other respect. These towns are most of them, if not all of them, among towns which have shown a continuous loss for many years.

Of the cities and towns in this county classed as principally devoted to manufactures, the following show gains in population and in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations: Clarksburg, Dalton, Great Barrington, North Adams, Pittsfield, and Williamstown. Of the towns classed as manufacturing towns only Adams and Lee show losses in both respects, and this is due chiefly, no doubt, to the exceptional depression of local industries in these towns at the time of the collection of the information.

In Bristol County, of the towns classed as agricultural, Acushnet, Rehoboth, Seekonk, and Swansea show gains both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, while Dartmouth shows a loss in both respects. Dighton shows a slight gain in population and a loss in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, while Westport shows a loss in population and a gain in the other respect. Of the towns classed as principally devoted to manufactures in this county, all show gains both in population and in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations, except Attleborough and Norton. The loss in Attleborough has been explained by the division of the town; in Norton the loss is in population only, since a gain appears in the persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations.

In Dukes County the towns classed as agricultural show losses.

The following table summarizes the results of the classification which indicates the industrial status of the towns in the different counties:

The figures in this table, explained by what we have previously said as to the method of classification, show that of the 15 towns in Barnstable County, three may be classed as devoted to agriculture; three to agriculture and manufactures; one to agriculture, fisheries, and manufactures; two to the fisheries; one to manufactures; one to the fisheries and as a place of residence; one to manufactures and as a place of residence; three to agriculture and manufactures and as a place of residence.

In Berkshire County, out of 32 cities and towns, 19 are to be classed under agriculture; three as engaged in agriculture and manufactures; nine in manufactures principally; and one as a residence town, engaged also in agriculture and manufactures.

In Bristol County, out of 20 cities and towns, seven are devoted to agriculture; four to agriculture and manufactures; and nine principally to manufactures.

In Dukes County, which contains seven towns, there are three which are classed under agriculture; one under agriculture and fisheries; two as residence towns, engaged also in manufactures; and one as a residence town engaged also in agriculture, fisheries, and manufactures.

The relative importance of the different counties in agriculture, so far as may be judged from the number of towns engaged therein, in comparison with the whole number of towns in each county, may be seen from the first line of the table. That is to say, in Barnstable, three out of 15, in Berkshire, 19 out of 32, in Bristol, seven out of 20, in Dukes, three out of seven, are towns in which the persons engaged in agriculture outranked those engaged in manufactures and the fisheries.

On the other hand, considering towns in which the persons engaged in manufactures predominated, thus constituting the town by our basis of classification a manufacturing town, there is one out of 15 in Barnstable County, nine out of 32 in Berkshire, nine out of 20 in Bristol, and none in Dukes County. Of the towns in which the persons employed in gainful occupations are principally engaged in the fisheries, Barnstable County contains two out of 15, and the other counties none. Barnstable County contains five towns in which agriculture, manufactures, and the fisheries combined did not engage more than 50 per cent of the persons employed in gainful pursuits; these towns, therefore, being considered residence towns, although engaged to a certain extent in some one or more of the industries named. Berkshire contains one such town, and Dukes three. There are no such towns in Bristol County.

The following table gives, in condensed form for each of the counties, for the cities and towns showing increase in population and in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations, the number which show the greater increase in one respect as compared with the other, and for the cities and towns showing losses, those which show the greater loss in one respect as compared with the other:

Counties.	Number of Cities and Towns showing greater increase in—		Number of Cities and Towns showing greater loss in—		New Towns	Aggregates
	Population	Gainful and Productive Occupations	Population	Gainful and Productive Occupations
Barnstable,	3	3	5	4	–	15
Berkshire,	3	6	13	10	–	32
Bristol,	3	12	3	1	1	20
Dukes,	1	2	2	1	1	7

In Barnstable County, out of 15 towns there are six which show increases in population or in persons engaged in gainful and productive occupations; of these three show a greater increase in population than in the other respect. There are nine towns which show losses, and of these five show a greater loss in population than is shown in the number of persons employed in gainful and productive occupations.

Of the 32 cities and towns in Berkshire County, there are nine which show gains, and of these three show a greater gain in population than in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations. On the other hand, there are 23 towns which show losses, and of these 13 show a greater loss in population than is shown in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations.

Of the 20 cities and towns in Bristol County, 15 show gains, and in three of these the gain is greater in population than in persons employed in gainful and productive occupations. There are four towns which show losses, and in three of these the greater loss is in population. There is one town in the county established since 1885, and therefore not entering into the comparison.

Of the seven towns in Dukes County there are three which show gains, and in one of these the gain in population is the greater. There are also three which show losses, and in two of these the loss in population is the greater. One town, established since 1885, is therefore outside the comparison.

All Occupations: By Towns.

For the Counties of Essex, Franklin, Hampden, and Hampshire.

ALL OCCUPATIONS: BY TOWNS.

Under "Classified Occupations: By Towns," the first presentation in this volume, will be found a statement for each city and town showing the number of males and females, respectively, in each of the 22 classes of occupations.

The explanation of the presentation "All Occupations: By Towns," given in the note on pages 161 — 167, ante, and relating to the counties of Barnstable, Berkshire, Bristol, and Dukes, is equally applicable to the presentation which follows, relating to the counties of Essex, Franklin, Hampden, and Hampshire, and the reader should refer to the same in order to fully understand the method of presentation and the reasons for giving the statistics in the manner selected.

Under each class, as explained in the note previously referred to, are "Sections," by which are meant the principal subdivisions under each class, which are usually called industries. Under each section are further subdivisions called "Detail," which are in reality the minor subdivisions of industries, usually called branches of occupation. To learn the number of sections and details under each class, it will be necessary to refer to the note on pages 161 — 167, ante.

In the first presentation in this volume "Classified Occupations: By Towns," the number in each class, with specification of sex, is given, but no further information is supplied. In the presentation "All Occupations: By Towns," the information supplied is much more complete. We have first the classification by general classes and by section heads, under separate classifications by sex, for each city and town. Besides the number of persons in each class and section, with sex specification, we have in addition four classifications by age periods, four by length of residence in the United States, and also a column indicating the number of illiterate persons employed in the specified section. For instance, if we turn to the presentation for the city of Lynn, on page 392, post, under the general class heading Manufactures we find the section heading Boots and Shoes. Taking the line for males first we learn that the whole number of males employed in the manufacture of boots and shoes in the city of Lynn on May 1, 1895, was 7,001. Of these, 779 were 15 but under 20 years of age; 5,854, 20 but under 60 years of age; and 368, 60 years and over. The number of illiterates was 63. As regards length of residence in the United States, 54 had lived in the United States one year or less; 334, one year but under six years; 3,336, six years but under 30 years; and 3,277, 30 years and over. Taking the line for females, on page 396, post, we find that the number of that sex employed in the manufacture of boots and shoes in Lynn on May 1, 1895, was 3,142. Their ages, classified by age periods, were as follows: 490, 15 but under 20 years; 2,629, 20 but under 60; and 23, 60 years and over. The number of illiterate females employed in the manufacture of boots and shoes was 10. As to the length of residence in the United States, 19 had lived in the United States one year or less; 155, over one year but under six years; 1,939, six years but under 30 years; and, 1,029, 30 years and over.

These illustrations could be multiplied indefinitely, but they would not vary materially from the one just given. In a general way it may be stated that the presentation of "All Occupations: By Towns" shows for each city and town in the Commonwealth the number of males and females engaged in each of the 22 general classes of occupations. It also shows the number of males and females engaged in each of the sections or subdivisions under each of the general classes, with further specifications by age periods, length of residence, and number of illiterate persons in each of such classes or sections. Particular attention is called to the State recapitulation of this presentation (which includes only towns and cities). In the State aggregation, not only are the facts hereinbefore mentioned included, but in addition are given under each class and section, correlated with the details of age periods, length of residence, and illiteracy, the place of birth and descent of native born persons having foreign parentage, the place of birth of the father being considered as determining the nationality. This State recapitulation will be found in Volume VII, as will also a presentation for the State, showing for each of the 3,947 specific branches of occupations in detail, the number of each sex, with further specification of those native born, of native descent; native born, of foreign descent; foreign born; foreign born, naturalized; and foreign born, alien. From the fact that these presentations, to be found in another volume, are in reality State recapitulations of the tables presented in this volume, it has been deemed advisable to call particular attention to them, and to specify in which of the Census volumes they could be found.
